It is true that this hicken agency is lineer to some than to others, but it exercises its power indiscriminately, totally disregarding be individua worthiness or unworthiness. Some of the most unscrubulous are raised to the tobmost binnacles of fortune, walle others far more deserving struggle to break the fetters that bine them to a remorseless fate.

That man is a creature of circumstances, is undeniably true when we that of the uncertainty attending his every step; and we snow that great ends cannot be schieved without the aid of at east a few of formne's best gills. The true secret o a successfu, career lies in man's capacity to improve each opportunity and to turn these few gifts which nature has been bleased to bestow, into the most productive channels. THE DOMESTICATES.

The Three Men Wid Retresert Ts at the Berling Conference,

Wio the Bernar and English Delegates to the Council Are.

BERLIN, May 27, 1889.

On the south side of the Wilhelmstrasse, the 'most aristocratic s reet of Berlin, stands a pain, of as hopec, two-story building. It ooks very shabby from he outside nor does it present a more attractive appearance within. The only beauty it possesses lies in its vast garden containing hundred year odtrees, a very park in the center of Berlin. This garden extends for severa hundred yards back to the loniggratzerstrasse, and here Bismarck is in the habit of taking als constitutiona wa'ks screened 'rom the eyes of the enrious public. all at the long, ow but ding lying in v front o' tais miniature paracise coes not partake o' its leanty, nor does its iome y, weather-stained exterior 'ead the stranger to suppose that here centre the wires which control the destiny of Surope to day. But so it is, for this shabby house contains the German foreign office. ere are the plans aid and the intrigues initiated which keeps Germany at the head of European Cip omacy and bower.

Entering the rickety coorway, passing up a ewsteps and through a goomy ha!. with whitewashed wa' sand carbeted with c reap matting, one ascends an old worn stairway to the second story. Od and worn everything appears in the building. But it has none of the romance which lingers at out some ancient houses. The impression one receives from it is rather that of a shabby gentee tenement house, like those seen in the lower part of New York.

In the second story, facing the park, is located the room in which the Samoa conference holds its sessions. It is about 30 feet in length by about 20 feet in widts. t is fitter up with the same Spartan simp icity-not to use a stronger word-as the rest of the building. The oor is innocent of carbets-a bare bine coor-the wa's are bainted a dirty white. ment. Around the walls made of the Samoan is ance are rung. In the centre Stands a plain table covered with green baize; on the table lie nine back leather portfolios. Around it are grouped a cozen cuesu armicuairs, upuolstered with tawery rec plusa. At the head of the table sits Count Lerbert Bismarck, at the 'oot the two secretaries, on either side are ranged the commissioners.

Such is the room in waich the des tinies of Samoa will be decided and the questions at issue between America and Germany are being discussed. It is not may make use of even tribes.
